Open a New Sub-Account

You can conveniently open another Century Federal account through Online Banking. When opening a new account through this feature, your information prefills. You can choose to open either a deposit account and can also order available services for those products like a debit card. You can view/print disclosures right from the workflow and fund the account via an existing Century Federal Account, ACH from another financial institute or debit card. If the account is automatically approved, you'll be provided with the account number immediately. If the account is pending, you'll be notified.
