The screenshot shows a web browser window with a dark blue header containing the text "Help", "Centrum", "Help & Contact Us", and "Logout". Below the header, there is a navigation link "(Register -> Centrum)". The main heading is "Confirm Registration" in red. Below this, it says "Please confirm your information." and lists three fields: "Your Account #", "Email Address", and "Your Name", each followed by a blurred input area. A section titled "Please read and accept the Disclaimer." contains a scrollable text area with the following content: "By accessing the CFU Electronic Statement Service (eStatements), you agree to the terms identified in the Electronic Services Agreement (the Agreement) as well as the terms identified in the CFU Member Services Agreement you received when you opened your account. By clicking I Accept, you confirm that you have read the terms and conditions, that you understand them and that you are in compliance with them. YOU WILL NO LONGER RECEIVE A PAPER STATEMENT IN THE MAIL." Below this is a "Definitions" section stating "The following definitions apply in this agreement." and defining "E-Statement" as an internet-based service, "E-Mail" as messages sent to a specified address, "Password" as a code for opening statements, and "CENTURY FEDERAL CREDIT UNION" or "CFU" as the provider. An "E-Statement Services Agreement" section follows, stating "This Agreement describes your rights and obligations as a user of the e-Statement Service ('Service'). It also describes the rights and obligations of CENTURY FEDERAL CREDIT UNION. Please read this Agreement carefully. By pressing the 'I Accept' button below, you elect". At the bottom, there is a checkbox labeled "I agree to these conditions" and a button labeled "I Accept".
